

Are you ready to do things differently in child welfare?

Information Session: Introducing the new Center for Workforce Equity and Leadership

Are you ready to do things differently in child welfare? So are we! Join us to learn about the federally-funded support available through the Center for Workforce Equity and Leadership (CWEL).

Imagine a workforce where equity prevails, and people of all backgrounds thrive with purpose and opportunity. Our mission is to advance race equity and social justice within the child welfare workforce while improving workforce recruitment and retention through site-specific support.

During this information session, we'll share how our free and tailored services can support your state, county, tribe, or territory in improving recruitment, retention, and well-being within your child welfare workforce. Additionally, we'll share how you can apply to be a CWEL site and how to stay connected so you benefit from the work being done across the country.

Presenters

Nathan Ross, Project
Director

Myca Jeter, Director of Pathways to Clinical
Licensure & Coaching

Britt Cloudsdale, Director of
Site Implementation

Register here!

Date & time

April 23, 2024, 2-3 p.m. EST

Audience

Those working in state, county, tribal, or territorial child welfare in public agencies.